This year there will be not only an exhibit but several exhibits, which will of themselves by their presence alone, and the idea they give of the competition that has already entered the business of silk culture, prove its rapidly increasing importance. Of these exhibitions Miss Parbam is not the only woman, and the presence of these women at the Exposition, and ill ence of these women at the Exposition, and the success they will prove they have achieved, will doubtless inspire others to

A representative of the APPEAL who vis-ited Miss Parham yesterday evening found piled in great heaps about the room and a number of glass jars, such as will be used in the display, were filled with them. In one jur the cocooms, raised from Turkish worms, were a soft, creamy white. A second jer contained cocoosa of a bright saftron hus, which were raised from worms of Chinese extraction, while those in a third, of a lighter yellow, were French. Under a small gissglobe a wild moth rested. From tip to tip

A quantity of other paraphernalia relating to silk culture was also seen, showing that Miss Parham in tends to make an exhibit of which not only the managers of the Exposition, but the State will have good reason to be proud.
